

Cartoons for the Classroom

Presented by NIEonline.com and the Association of American Editorial Cartoonists (AAEC)

What threatens the world most?

Bill Day / Courtesy of Cagle.com

Talking points

1. What image do cartoonists Bill Day and Nate Beeler both use to comment on the dangers confronting us?
2. What hazards do the cartoons illustrate?
3. Which of these situations are you most worried about? Why?
4. Is it difficult to cope with threats that develop slowly? Are we short-sighted?
5. Does alarmist or frivolous news reporting distract people from confronting more serious issues?

Between the lines

"We are confronting [ISIS], and we are confronting terrorism and we are confronting Ebola . . . the grave threat that climate change poses warrants a prominent position on that list." - John Kerry

<http://www.theguardian.com/environment/2014/sep/21/-sp-climate-change-protest-melbourne-london-new-york-protest>

Additional resources

More by Bill Day

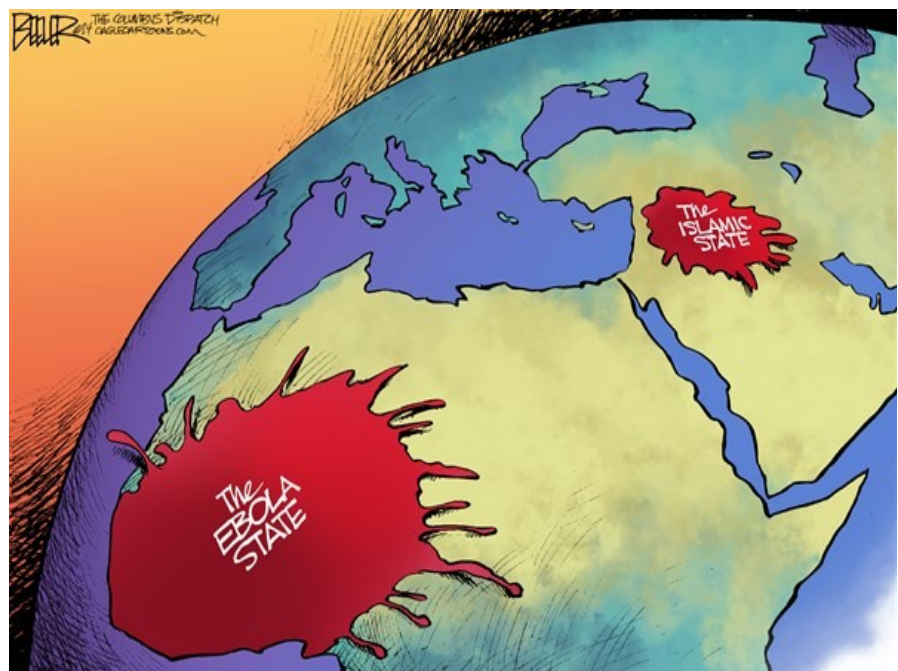

<http://www.cagle.com/author/bill-day>

More by Nate Beeler

<http://editorialcartoonists.com/cartoon/browse.cfm/BeeleN>

Association of American Editorial Cartoonists

<http://editorialcartoonists.com/>

VIRUSES

Nate Beeler, The Columbus Dispatch / Courtesy of AAEC